

POVERTY, GENDER AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN SUB-SAHARAN AFRICA: Rethinking Best Practices in Migration Management

By Thanh-Dam Truong

Poverty, Gender and Human Trafficking in Sub-Saharan Africa:
Rethinking Best Practices in Migration Management

Parts of this report are based on the co-authored publication entitled 'Searching for Best Practices to Counter Human Trafficking in Africa: A Focus on Women and Children' by Thanh-Dam Truong and Maria Belen Angeles, UNESCO (March 2005).

The choice of the material contained in this report and the opinions expressed therein do not necessarily represent the views of UNESCO and do not commit the Organization.

Photographs

Cover page : Mali, Djenné, Women and housework in a village © Vorontzoff, A. • page 21 : Côte d'Ivoire, Abidjan, Street, market, women © Fernandez • page 33 : Benin, Ganvie, Riparian city of Ganvie, Women on a dugout © Malempré, G. • page 59 : Senegal, Children in a crowd, outdoor © Roger, Dominique • page 81 : Benin, Cotonou, Big market of Dantokpa, Women standing along the lagoon © Malempré, Georges • page 99 : W., Ghana, Accra, Young children © Tochtermann • page 119 : Benin, Cotonou region, Motorbikes in a street, Cotonou region © Malempré, Georges.

Publication coordination and contact

Saori Terada and Caroline Bacquet

UNESCO Project to Fight Human Trafficking in Africa

1, rue Miollis 75732 Paris Cedex 15 France

www.unesco.org/shs/humantrafficking

Layout and realization

Soledad Munoz Gouet and Marina Taurus

solemg@free.fr

© UNESCO 2006. All rights reserved.

SHS/CCT/2006/PI/H/1

POVERTY

Article 25. Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing, medical care and necessary social services, and education. Care and assistance for the aged, the disabled and the sick are entitled to special care and assistance. All children, whether born in or out of wedlock, shall enjoy the same social protection.

POVERTY, GENDER AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN SUB-SAHARAN AFRICA: Rethinking Best Practices in Migration Management

By Thanh-Dam Truong

Achevé d'imprimer en décembre 2005
par l'Imprimerie Chirat - Saint-Just-la-Pendue (42)

Dépôt légal : 4<sup>e</sup> trimestre 2005

Imprimé en France

POVERTY, GENDER AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN SUB-SAHARAN AFRICA: Rethinking Best Practices in Migration Management

By Thanh-Dam Truong

Many aspects of human trafficking remain poorly understood even though it is now a priority issue for many governments. Information available about the magnitude of the problem is limited. While the existing body of knowledge about human trafficking serves for raising public consciousness about the issue it is still not rigorous enough to lend support to comprehensive programmes for action which addresses the different dimensions of the problem. Knowledge about the intersection between migration and trafficking has not yet brought about any consensus on the underlying forces and their implications for the wellbeing of children and women. The diversity of forms of human mobility in the contemporary context of global linkages requires an analytical approach which can explain why the needs of the constituents of social structures (gender, class, generation and ethnicity) and human agency have converged to produce what is known as human trafficking. Without adequate explanation, policy tends to shift stance and direction.

The Report points out how practices of migration management can benefit from a more holistic approach – one which addresses a broad set of overlapping livelihood systems. A selected number of practices by organisations participating in this research is presented – giving their profiles, strengths and weaknesses, the way they understand trafficking, and the replicability of their practices. Preventive measures can benefit from research on migration management that connects issues of human mobility with capital mobility in a sector-specific analytical approach. A re-orientation of capital mobility towards social ends may possibly contribute to stability and well-considered migration policy frameworks.

A plurality of foci of authoritative knowledge offers diverse and potentially richer interpretation as well as fuller representation; and cross-cultural learning can improve the chance of finding innovative practices which reflect the acceptance of pluralism and diversity.